A Word from the Director

Dear Holter members and friends,

It is hard to believe we have come to the end of another year here at the Holter! Like so many others, we faced our share of challenges, but have also had our share of success!

Some years back we set out to create a new vision for the Holter, and a new creativity center was at the center of the vision. The idea was to bring new audiences to the museum through programming, workshops and event rentals. As many of you know, the new E.L. Wiegand Creativity Center is now open, and doing what we hoped it would, generating needed revenue and welcoming many first-time visitors to the museum.

Raising the necessary funds needed to keep the Holter healthy is always a challenge, but this year we are all facing our toughest challenge yet; with rising gas prices, inflation at its highest level and a looming recession we must work harder than ever. We are all making sacrifices at this time, but we can't forget how important the arts are for our mental and physical well-being. Your support year in and year out keeps us going, so please do what you can do to help us reach our financial goals this year.

Thank you all for the love and support!!

- Chris Riccardo, Executive Director

Because of a generous partnership with Ascent Bank, 5 local artists were able to receive seedling grants ranging from $500 - $3,000 in the development of new projects, professional development, purchasing of equipment, or to serve as a method to scaffold the next level of artistry.
HOLTER PROGRAMS

2,232 participants attended 5 different weekly programs throughout the year.

452 participants joined for recurring monthly and one-time specialty workshops.

We saw 3,020 students participate in a variety of activities throughout the school year.

1,800 K-5 students at Central School, Hawthorne Elementary, Bryant Elementary, and Kessler School received arts education through an 8-week Artists in Schools Residency program.

950+ 3rd graders from the Helena School District visited the museum for Field Trips led by Holter Docents.

325 area kids attended Summer Camp in 2021. The Holter was able to make accessible summer camp scholarships to 50 Helena families.

270 K-5 students toured the museum and shared in art making activities as part of the School District’s summer-time Camp Ascension.

Through weekly group classes, the Holter Healing Arts Program served 520 patients in St. Peter’s Health Behavioral Health Unit.

Still recovering from the effects of COVID-19, we have a hold on the mobile Art Carts and Maker Stations in the hospital. However, we have been able to offer weekly classes in the St. Peter’s Health Behavioral Health Unit.

The Holter held its second annual exhibition of patient artwork during the month of May, in celebration of Mental Health Awareness Month.

We continue our partnership with West Mont to assist with assembly and production of Personal Art Packs for use in St. Peter’s Health and Shodair Residential Home.

We started off the year with the Grand Opening of the E. L. Wiegand Creativity Center - a fantastic day of interactive arts and crafts, music, and a live performance from speed painter, Evan Struck. The W programming continues to grow and be a space for interactive art and community interaction:

We have been able to build up our events opportunities, now offering Yoga at the Museum, Wellness Wednesdays, and Open Mic Nights.
We thank our generous members, donors, volunteers, and community partners for their support of our mission to make the arts accessible to our community!

"The Holter Museum of Art is my favorite art venue. I am impressed with their dedication to art and to our Helena community. They do so much! Exhibits, events, artist talks, game nights, celebrations, classes, youth art programs, community partnerships. With the completion of the W Creativity Center, they provide a hub for many kinds of artists including poets and musicians. I am pleased to donate my money and time to this organization because I believe it is integral to our community."
